A gravel path leads through a stone archway, flanked by lush green grass and foliage. The path is made of light-colored gravel and leads towards a stone archway in the background. The archway is constructed from large, rounded stones. The surrounding area is filled with green grass and various plants, creating a natural and serene environment.

Guide for the Development of Bicycle Facilities

2012 • Fourth Edition

Shared use paths should be thought of as a system of off-road transportation routes for bicyclists and other users that extends and complements the roadway network. Shared use paths should not be used to preclude on-road bicycle facilities, but rather to supplement a network of on-road bike lanes, shared roadways, bicycle boulevards, and paved shoulders. †
